

Miami, Fla., October 20, 2015 - InPhonex, a leading provider of cloud-based communications services, has teamed up with VTech, a global leader in electronic learning products and the world's largest manufacturer of cordless phones, to provide a complete cloud business phone system aimed at helping businesses win and keep more customers by connecting in-office and remote employees with customers and colleagues through one end-to-end communication and customer management system.

InPhonex will provide its groundbreaking RingByName cloud-based business phone service for the new joint sales and marketing program, while VTech will provide a broad array of SIP-based endpoint devices. RingByName is much more than a business phone service: It provides integrated CRM that welcomes callers by name and remembers whom they spoke with last time. It also includes easy and powerful user and administrative web interfaces and mobile apps that allow users to assign and share contacts, notes, and tasks. VTech, a well-established leader in state-of-the-art manufacturing of telephony hardware, brings best-of-class devices to the program – including its one-of-a-kind ErisStation® conference phones with wireless microphones that adapt to the needs of meetings of all sizes.

“Aligning ourselves with VTech is a strategic step for InPhonex and our RingByName service,” says Matt Bramson, InPhonex’ chief strategy officer. “By partnering with a well-respected leader in telephony hardware, we increase both the value and simplicity of our offerings through our direct and indirect sales channels.”

“VTech is excited to launch its partnership with RingByName. Customers will now have access to VTech's award-winning and reliable SIP phone, which features a three-year warranty and new product advanced replacement that arrive fully configured with RingByName's powerful cloud-based service," said Graham Williams, vice president of sales for VTech.
